

Sheffield Women's Counselling and Therapy Service

We are recruiting female volunteer counsellors and therapists

Sheffield Women's Counselling and Therapy Service is an established charity providing free therapy to women survivors of abuse or trauma. SWCTS is committed to achieving equality of access to its services and employment. A female for this role is a determining occupational requirement and is exempt from discrimination under the Equality Act 2010, Part 1, Schedule 9

Are you a female counsellor or therapist either already qualified and looking to gain specialist experience in complex trauma work and increase your hours; or in your final year of an accredited training course with some experience of working with women who have experienced abuse or trauma? If so, we would love to hear from you.

We are looking for a minimum commitment of 12 months. In return for your skills and commitment we offer:

- a professional, supportive and creative working environment;
- the opportunity to gain experience in specialist work with survivors of abuse and trauma;
- ongoing mentoring and monthly group supervision;
- comfortable group therapy room equipped with materials for creative therapy;
- discounts or free places on specialist trauma training events;
- access to a comprehensive specialist library;
- the knowledge that you are helping to support some of the most vulnerable - and courageous - women in the city

Recent feedback from our volunteers

"Administrative support is really good. SWCTS policies and procedures are so clear; it makes me, and my clients, feel properly held. I value the fact that my group supervision is free."

"Being at SWCTS enabled me to build up my experience of working with clients experiencing trauma and abuse, and develop areas of expertise in my private practice and in paid work for other agencies."
